28 LOTS SOLD AT CLEAR CREEK SPRING AUCTION

Louisville Real Estate Representatives to Stay Here and Sell Lots Privately—Those Yesterday Bring From $200 to $1000

INTERESTING ENTERTAINMENT FOR VISITORS TO SALE

With a roar of the local band and the public-spirited sentiments expressed by members of our citizens, the auction of lots got under way in the morning. Mr. Clarke, president of the Louisville Real Estate and Development Co., represented the company in person, and spoke several minutes on the wonderful possibilities of the project. He stated that he had been raised in the eastern Kentucky mountains and that he realized the disadvantages of this section, and for that reason he had more than a business interest in the development of the proposition.

Mr. Clarke emphasized his statements by the purchase of the first lot offered for $1000. To J. Asher followed with the purchase of an adjoining lot at the same price.

The following purchases were made during the morning: D. C. Clarke, Louisville, lot on golf course, $1000; Lot 64, Section B, $1000; Ira B. Creech, Lot, No. 65, raised his own bid from $500 to $600; Norman Peckins, Williamsburg, Lot, 66, Section B, $500; First State Bank, Pineville, Lot 67, Section A, $500; Dr. H. A. Wilson, Pineville, Lot 68, $500; Kiwanis Club of Pineville, Lot 72, Section B, $100; George Manning, Pineville, Lot 70, Section B, $300.

Dr. L. C. Kelley then gave a short talk, thanking the people for their support, however insisting on a little more enthusiasm. With the statement that the more money paid for a lot the more the lot would be worth, due to the fact that all profits would be turned into the improvement of the place.

The meeting was begun in the afternoon at 1:15 o'clock. Dr. Black of Harlan gave a short talk emphasizing the fact that the Harlan people were behind the movement, but due to the fact that they were undergoing extensive improvements on their church, they would not invest at the present, but would invest later. "We move slowly, act wisely and our words is the law," he said, "and I feel that I am safe in saying that the people of Harlan will occupy in the near future at least ten of the lots." The auctioneering was begun and the following are the sales of the afternoon: W. R. Marsee, Pineville, Lot 61, section B, $22; D. C. Clarke, Louisville, Lot 18, Section A, $200. Sold for the blind to Miss Lida Rofkin, a blind lady of Birmingham, Ala., as a future place of recreation for the blind, Lot No. 11, $200, represented by Rev. L. C. Kelly, of Pineville, Lot 35, Section B: Clarke and Crawley representatives from Barbourville, bid $2000 on ten lots, Nos. 25 to 44, Section A; The Pineville Insurance Agents, Lot 42, Block A, $200; Men's Bible Class of First Baptist Church of Middlesboro, Lot 151, Section B, $200, for the use of their pastor as a place of recreation. Mrs. B. K. Hallifield, Pineville, Lot 41, Section A, $200; M. S. Parrott, Pineville, Lot No. 68, Section B, $200; D. D. Faulkner, Lot 99, Section B, $200.

The gathering was entertained by Mrs. Howard Camintz of Louisville, who gave several very interesting readings, and by the local band.

The stage held a chart showing the exact location of the lots, and in addition, a splendid painted bird's eye view giving the observer a clear conception of the appearance of the Springs.

PINEVILLE, Nov. 23.—About twenty-eight lots Clear Creek Springs project were sold at public auction in Pineville yesterday at prices ranging from $200 to $1000 for each lot. A number of the lots have already been sold privately and the rest will be sold in the same manner.

No more lots will be sold for less than $250, C. C. Clarke, president of the Louisville real estate company which is handling the matter has said. He declared this morning that this was more than a mere business transaction to his company and that they intend to put it over properly. J. T. Holmes, secretary of the company, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Camnitz will stay in Bell County to handle the private sales.

Two more lots were sold at the evening meeting, at 7:30 p. m., one to Vernon Bolton of Pineville, lot in Section A, for $200; and a lot in Section B, to the Rev. H. A. Blakeman, pastor of the Corbin Baptist Church, for $200.

Zev Wins

Zev, shot In Memoriam in the match race at Churchill Downs—according to the judges. Many spectators at the track, however, were given in the opinion the race ended in a dead heat, some even thinking In Memoriam was the winner. This photo of the finish of what will be the most discussed race of the year, shows the horses apparently neck and neck. Zev has the white hood on his head.

OPEN BASKETBALL YEAR DECEMBER 3

Preparations for opening the basketball season in the Middlesboro schools on Monday after Thanksgiving Day are being made according to John T. Kilpatrick, athletic director.

The new athletic gym at the High school building is now entirely ready for play, the goals having been recently installed. Inter-class tournaments will be held and fifteen of the most proficient players will be selected to form the high school teams.

A great deal of interest is being manifested in this popular indoor game this season and the prospective players are eager to begin practice.

INVENTOR IMPROVES HIS PATENTED SHADE HOLDER

J. F. Bringar has made an improvement on his patent window shade holder by affixing to it a curtain rod holder. Application for a patent on this improvement is pending.

The shade holder, a unique device which can be widened or narrowed to fit the length of the shade, was patented several months ago. A number of them have been manufactured and placed on the market. The patentee has not yet decided whether he will handle the manufacture and sale of the device in a small way or sell the right to a manufacturer.

UNION SERVICE ON THANKSGIVING DAY

Churches Plan Joint Meeting at 10:30 a. m. At Presbyterian Church—Rev. McClure to Preach

A union Thanksgiving Day service, in which city churches will join, will be held at the First Presbyterian church at 10:30 o'clock Thursday morning. The Rev. W. K. McClure, pastor of the M. E. Church, South, will preach the Thanksgiving sermon. A musical program, prepared by the Christian church members, will be rendered.

It is hoped that a large attendance will be present for this special service and the public is assured that the meeting will be over in time for the people to attend the Middlesboro-Pineville football game or otherwise to enjoy the afternoon.

The union service was agreed upon at the last meeting of the Middlesboro Ministerial association.

WATCHFUL WAITING OFFICER CATCHES COAL THIEF

Sergt. Bill Lipps, of the L. & N. special police force, has an effective way of procuring evidence—he watches the suspect and catches him in the act. By "watchful waiting" policy he was able to secure conviction at Wallsend.

Charles Fire, negro whose temperature was evidently not that which his name implies, climbed aboard a coal car on the yards here and filled a sack with coal. The officer, witnessing the theft, promptly made the arrest. Fire was fined $9.25 in court at Wallsend for the offense.

For some time, coal had been disappearing from the cars on the yards and Sergt. Lipps was assigned the case. A few other men were arrested and convicted on similar charges.

LAUGHS AT HANGMAN

The law soon will exact its due. Arthur Covell, crippled astrologist of Marshfield, Ore., must die for his part in the "star" murder of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Ebba Covell. Yet he smiles as the judge pronounces sentence. And he is smiling here as jail attaches carry him back to his cell after the court has uttered the words that in a few weeks will send him to the gallows.

VERDICT GIVEN IN MANY CASES

Most of Charges on Minor Accusations—One Gets Year Sentence For Swindle

V. S. Shavely, convicted on a charge of fraudulent conversion of funds, received a sentence of one year in the penitentiary in circuit court yesterday.

It was charged that he, the agent of the Atlas Marble company, a Georgia firm, had kept all the money collected from the sale of tombstones. According to his contract, he was entitled to only twenty-five per cent of the money. Defendant attempted to prove the contract had expired before the offense occurred.

Manis Elmore, charged with maliciously shooting at Tom Ivie, was fined $200 by the jury Wednesday afternoon.

Other cases tried and the verdicts rendered are as follows:

Jim Haynes, carrying weapons, not guilty; Joe Burton, giving away liquor, $100, thirty days and $1000 peace bond; Tim Hall, charged with liquor in possession, not guilty; J. W. Crow, assault and battery by driving his car against another, fined $50; Corn Man, is, carrying weapons, $50, 10 days and disfranchised two years; Tyrus Howard, not answering for jury service, fined $1; John Watts, Jr., J. HARROGATE, Tenn., Nov. 22.—The Declaimers' Contest, participated in by representatives of the four literary societies of Lincoln Memorial University, will be held at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night in the University auditorium. Each society will be out in full force, ably encouraging its representatives with yells and songs. A great amount of spirit and pep is always displayed on the occasion of the Declaimers' Contest, an annual event, and this one promises to be among the best the University has known.

The two girls' societies, Lanier and Browning, and the two boys' societies, Philomathean and Grant-Lee, will take part in the contest. Their representatives will be: Browning, Misses Hazel Fulton and Inez Carr; Lanier, Misses Esther Griffith and Beatrice Garrett; Philomathean, Colon Strickland and Leroy Hendricks; Grant-Lee, Luther Watson and Sam O'Neal.

HILL CASH STORE CLOSED YESTERDAY BY CREDITORS

The Hill Cash store has been closed by an order of attachment issued by the circuit court clerk and the stock of goods is held subject to claims of the firm's creditors.

This course of procedure was agreed upon at a joint meeting of the creditors and the stockholders of the firm at Knoxville Friday and the action is entirely friendly. The name of the Moore Rogan Dry Goods company appears as defendant on the order, it being necessary that one of the creditors obtain the writ of attachment.

Parties to the action declined to make public the aggregate indebtedness of the firm or the value of the stock of goods. The corporation owes $55.57 to the Moore-Rogan company. Trial of the action is set for the February term of circuit court, though it is thought that the circuit judge will order the disposition of the goods before that time.

BEAN'S FORK NEGRO HAS MYSTERIOUSLY DISAPPEARED

Rogers Richmond, colored, mysteriously disappeared at Bean's Fork Wednesday and has not been seen since. He was driving a team of black horses when last seen and had expressed his intention of going there for a load of coal. His wife and family are worried over his continued absence and the police department has been notified of the occurrence. There are no apparent reasons why the man should thus disappear.

FIRST HALF GAME WITHOUT SCORE

M. H. S. and L. M. U. Playing Close Game on Local Field—Outcome is Doubtful

Ed Yeager and Lynn Rouser are officials at the game. A large crowd from Harrogate is present, while Middlesboro fans did not turn out as well as was expected.

WEAPON FLOURISHED PROVES TO BE FAR FROM DEADLY

The defendant in magistrates court was being tried for flourishing a deadly weapon. According to the testimony, he pulled the gun from his holster and threatened to shoot a light out, after which he pointed it at his sweetheart in a threatening manner. Things looked dark for the man and it seemed certain that the county's coffer would shortly be enriched to the extent of $74.25.

The aspect of the case changed when the pistol was offered as an exhibit in the case. It was a toy cap pistol, a gun which Magistrate Charles C. Smyth held was not a deadly weapon.

ONE NEGRESS STABS ANOTHER IN FIGHT OVER HUSBAND

Ellen Thomas, colored, was seriously stabbed by Daisy Hardaway in a fight over the latter's husband at Yellow Creek Wednesday afternoon, according to reports. The alleged assailant was arrested by Leslie Goodman, deputy constable, and is held under a $1000 bond on charges of malicious cutting and wounding.

The Hardaway woman, using a pocket knife, is said to have inflicted a number of dangerous wounds on the back, breast and arms of the other. The victim retaliated with a razor but merely succeeded in slightly wounding the infuriated negress in the face.

KNOX COUNTY JAILER SLAIN, ONE DEPUTY KILLED, ANOTHER IS HURT ON LOST FORK LAST NIGHT

Officers Had Gone to Bailey Home To Arrest Him for Escape From Jail, Deputy Allen Wounded, Escapes

DETAILS OF TRAGEDY ARE MEAGER AND INCOMPLETE

By Associated Press.

BARBOURVILLE, Nov. 23.—Two officers were instantly killed and a third seriously wounded at the home of Pet Bailey on Stinking Creek near here today. The officers had gone to the Bailey home to arrest him after Bailey's escape from jail here last week. The dead are Jailer Charles West and Deputy Sheriff Foster Messer. The wounded is Deputy Sheriff Allen. As the trio approached the Bailey home, a window was raised and a volley fired. West and Messer fell dead, Allen, seriously wounded, fled, leaving the bodies in yard reaching nearby farmhouse. Allen summoned assistance by telephone. Posses, officers and citizens are on way to Bailey home. Allen said he could not see who fired the shots.

According to reports obtained from the county officers at Pineville who have been in telephonic communication with Knox county officers, Otis Smith, Hamp Hubbard and Bailey went coon hunting and left Smith at the Bailey home. Jailer West and his deputies came to the house and demanded the surrender of Bailey.

After an exchange of words, according to this report, the shooting began. Mrs. Bailey was shot in the hip. Bailey was Smith's father-in-law.

JURY SOLIDLY BEHIND JUDGE

It is gratifying to note that a large number of criminal cases are being disposed of during the present term of court and that when defendants are found guilty they usually receive the maximum sentences. This is particularly true in cases against old offenders.

The jury is an intelligent, clear-thinking body of law-abiding citizens, one that clearly recognizes that justice and not conviction is the object. The verdicts thus far have been prompt and clean-cut, thus expediting the wheels of justice which are never over-rapid.

There is no doubt that the grand jury and the petit juries are standing solidly behind Judge J. G. Forrester who is waging a relentless warfare against the criminal element in this section. Men have been selected who have nothing in common with lawbreakers and it is noticed that the quality of men is not challenged by the defense.

There are men on the juries this term who are owners or executives of important houses in the city and, be it said to their credit, they have offered no objections to jury service: they are cognizant of the fact that the common welfare of the community transcends any private business and also of the fact that sound judgment and executive are necessary to the proper administrtion of justice.

It is juries of this class which will ultimately reduce to a minimum the lawlessness in this section.

"THE BALANCE OF TRADE"

That Europe is still the best market for the products of the United States is shown by the statistical reports of the government for the nine months ending September 30. We sold Europe $1,414,310,906 worth of goods and bought form her $864,879,756 the excess of exports to that country being $549,631,150. Europe brought 48 per cent of all her exported products. Great Britain and her dominions are far and away our best constomers, taking 42 per cent of all the exports sent beyond our borders.

And still there are those who ask "What have we to do with abroad." They talk of the "home market" for American products and think we should be satisfied to ignore the opportunities presented by international commerce. The trouble has been that we have not reached out after foreign trade, which made England and Germany world leaders in supplying the world's requirements. We are exporting to three continents, South America, Asia and Africa, $700,000,000 less than we are buying from them. Only to Europe, North America and Oceania do we sell more than we buy. Canada, our chief customer in North America, Australia and New Zealand in Oceania, all English-speaking countries, together with the British Isles, sent us only 28 percent of our imports, while Asiatic products, such as raw silk, rubber, tin, tea and tobacco made up 25 per cent.

If we could not sell abroad the four billion dollars worth of products we are now exporting, what would we do with them? Shall the agricultural products rot on the ground when the crops are bounteous, or shall our fertile acres go unplanted and be followed by a famine in the years when crops are a failure?

Shall we attempt by legislation, to control the natural laws of supply and demand; shall we set up an autocratic bureau in Washington to tell us what to do with our lands, when and how much to plant? That is the creed of Secretary Wallace' pleas and is Senator Capper's spee hes. They are floundering around looking for cure-all remedies. Cooperative marketing without government intervention is the answer." Le Cheve Herald

Berton Braley's Poem

HOPELESS

Oh she's so young and slender,
And pretty as a peach
Her smile is warm and tender,
And gracious is her speech,
Few girls are fairer,
Yet my affection slumps,
I can't forgive this error,
She won't get out her Trumps!

Sweet, kind and altruistic,
Bright, sensible and sane,
She's gay and optimistic
And has a clever brain,
She's thrifty, wise and canny
And gives me heart throbs,
But this thing gets my goat,
She WON'T get out the Trumps!

She'd be a wife and mother
To make a fellow proud,
There isn't any other
Can match her in the crowd;
There's no one can't timer,
But—here's the fact that stumps,
(Oh, Bridge Fiends, dare I woo her?)
She WON'T get out the Trumps.

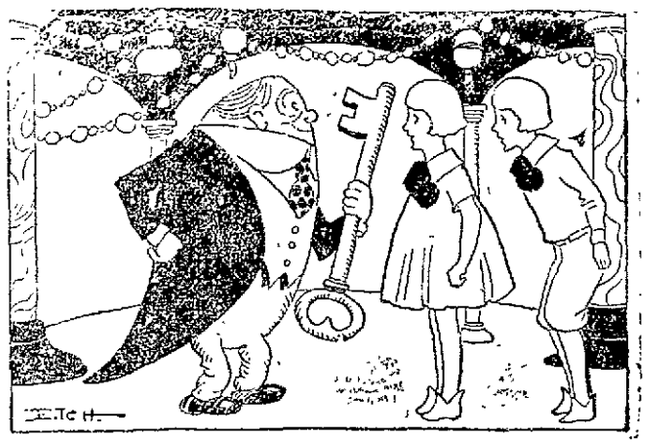
Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton



Humty Dumpty himself—no other.

Riddle Land! Riddle Land!" sang Nancy. "We're going to Riddle Land to see the Riddle Lady and I'm glad!"

The Fairy Queen smiled. "I'm glad too," she said. "Glad you are so happy about it. And I'm sure you won't be disappointed, for it's one of the most curious places in my kingdom—of my nine hundred and ninety-nine kingdoms, I should say."

"What are we to do there?" asked Nick, Nancy's twin brother.

"Nothing!" said the Fairy Queen. "That is, nothing but enjoy yourselves. All little boys and girls enjoy riddles, and when the Riddle Lady sent me word that she would love to have you, I promised her that you should go at once."

"Oh, thank you!" Cried both Twins together. "How do you get there?"

"By just wishing," said the Queen. "Your magic green shoes know the way. Are they on tight?"

"Tight as paint," said Nick, stamping 'round.

"You'll know the place when you come to it," the Fairy Queen went on to say. "The chimneys are all question marks and the houses in Riddle Town spell what. The people all have puckers between their eyes guessing so hard and Humpty Dumpty is mayor."

At that minute there was a loud knocking at the palace door and Nimble Toes, the Fairy Queen's servant, bowed in a visitor. A most pompous looking person, dressed in red plush small clothes and a white satin vest. His coat tails were of such a length as to show how important he was. Humpty Dumpty himself—no other—broad of neck and fat of cheek and a stomach of no small proportion.

He leaned forward slightly and straightened—about, no doubt, yet nobody could say that he had bent by an inch in the middle.

"Hearing that our visitors are such important little people," he began, "I came myself to escort them to Riddle Land and to give them the key to Riddle Town. At your service, my dears."

And so saying he handed the Twins a most enormous key that looked as though it might unlock a mountain. "If it suits your Highness, I shall take these children with me now. The Riddle Lady was writing a new riddle when I left. Indeed it was almost finished. Dick Red Cap, the town crier, was out with his trumpet and the people were beginning to gather in the square. The person who guesses the riddle first gets a prize."

"Yes, yes! Run right along, all of you," said the Queen, waving them away. "And see how smart you are and how many riddles you can guess, kiddies. Goodby!"

Humpty Dumpty bowed again stiffly and away they all went.

America's Favorite Songs

THERE'S A LONG, LONG TRAIL

Of American songs made famous during the recent war, none shows signs of greater longevity than "Long, Long Trail." Yet, like many a popular favorite of war time, it was not a war song at all.

The song originally was written for for a show at Yale University. At the last rehearsal of the show it was suggested to the authors that they needed a sentimental song to balance the ragtime music, and sitting down at the piano, Zo Elliott produced the melody while Stoddard King wrot the lyrics.

Many music publishers in this country turned it down and it was finally taken to England where it was accepted by an English publisher. Although used a little in the English music halls, it did not really become popular until the men in the trenches took it up and put a deeper interpretation on the words. From the trenches its popularity spread until it finally became one of the best loved songs of the war period.

Following the war the two authors of the song assumed pursuits in keeping with their respective contributions to the song. Stoddard King became a reporter on a Seattle paper and Zo Elliott continued his composition and continued vocal lessons.

Nights are growing very lonely,
Days are very long:
I'm a-growing weary only
Li-s'ning for your song.
Old remembrances are throwing
Thro' my memory,
Till it seems the world is full of dreams
Just to call you back to me.

There's a long, long trail awinding
Into the land of my dreams,
Where the nightingales are singing
And a white moon beams:
There's a long, long night of waiting
Until my dreams all come true:
Till the day when I'll be going down
That long, long trail with you.

All night long I hear you calling,
Calling sweet and low:
Seem to hear your footsteps falling,

AN INTIMATE STORY OF INNERMOST EMOTIONS REVEALED IN PRIVATE LETTERS

COPYRIGHT 1923 - NEA SERVICE INC.

I wonder if back in your time, little Marquise, there were women who went out of their way to plant suspicion in your mind or a hurt in your heart and I wonder if they looked like Mrs. Smithson. She is tall and thin, as if the milk of human kindness had dried up in her veins. Her mouth is almost a cruel slit and her chin comes out and is always a little red and pointed. Her eyes are narrow and about them are little crows' feet, not the crows' feet that you see around a jolly laughing woman, but the long, narrow ones that reach back to the temple and are accompanied habitually by two perpendicularly lines over the nose.

It always seems to me when I see Mrs. Smithson that it hurts me to smile and yet only to you would I draw such an unflattering picture, because in her way she has been nice to me. Since I have been ill she has sent me over some delicate custard and one day she made a freezer of egg-nog ice cream simply so that I could have some of it.

Jack, who dislikes her very much, insists that this isn't kindness, but a species of patronage, a kind of sop to her own vanity. I wonder which of us is right.

When she came forward to shake my hand, she had a kind of peculiar look upon her face that I had never seen before. An expression which partook of triumph and sorrow, pity and virtuous condemnation. (Now you know, little Marquise, if I would make any such fanciful description as that to anyone but you, he would say I had suddenly gone crazy). But I still contend that is just the way she looked and that look was born out of thoughts she did not voice, but which she implied.

"That picture, 'Trumping His Heart,' I told you about last week, Mrs. Prescott, has been the most popular one that has been shown here for many a day." This was her first exclamation. "It is going to be here for still another week and I do hope you are going to be able to see it. I have been four times, and I saw your husband there all alone the other evening. Did he say anything to you about it?"

"Not a word, but my friend, Ruth Ellington, who has just arrived from New York, wrote me while she was there that she had seen the picture and it was extremely interesting."

"Did she tell you anything about it?"

"No, she said it was too long a story to write when she was so busy and that she would tell me about it when she got home."

"One reason I think the picture has caught on to such an extent here is because the Perier girl, who plays the principal part and who is said to have helped the authoress in the writing of the play, used to live here. Every man in town I think knew her. She was a model you know, and called very beautiful. I never could see very much in her, but my husband seemed to think she was about the prettiest girl he ever saw. I think she shows up well in pictures.

"By the way, I think your husband knew her. Have you ever asked him about her?"

"My husband told me once, Mrs. Smithson, that the young lady had been a model for him in some of his advertising illustrations, but I was not curious at all. I expect if you saw him there alone it was because he saw gone to see if she had changed. I know he would be very glad to find that she was making a success in her new profession."

"Yer likely."

Because those words are written on paper, little Marquise, you will never know how nasty they sounded from that odious woman's lips.

When You Are Old

When you are old and gray and full of sleep
And nodding by the fire, take down this book,
And slowly read, and dream of the soft look
Your eyes had once, and of their shadows deep;

How many loved your moments of glad grace,
And loved you with love false or true,
But one man loved the pilgrim soul in you,
And loved the sorrows of your changing face;

And bending down beside the glowing bars,
Murmur a little sadly, how love fled
And paced upon the mountains overhead,
And hid his face amid a crown of stars.
—William Butler Yeats.

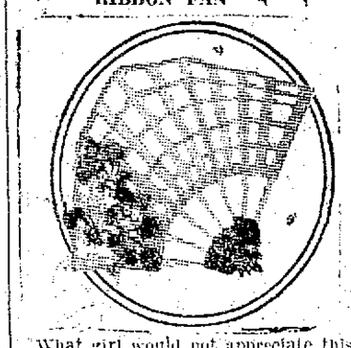
RIBBON FAN



What girl would not appreciate this ribbon-latticed fan in silver to match the girdle and bandeau she wears with her evening frock?

To make it, the ribbon is applied smoothly to the ivory of a fan by a thin coating of glue. The flowers are made of metallic ribbon and may be glued or sewed in place.

If you are not an adept at making flowers, you can purchase very attractive ones for a small amount.

SISTER Mary's KITCHEN

Winter Salads

A salad always adds zest and interest to a meal and should be included just as often as possible, during the winter months.

There are many small economies that can be practiced in this course that do not require any extra time. Nor do they detract from the food value or beauty of the dish.

Unless the salad is a lettuce salad, use lettuce leaves only as garnish. Outside leaves of head lettuce or leaf lettuce cut in shreds will furnish the necessary green at almost no cost. Or parsley, broken in tiny sprigs and dropped over a fish or meat salad, adds the needed color without any lettuce. Celery tops, carefully looked over and crisped, take the place of lettuce. Or a fruit salad can be served in an apple or orange cup, doing away with any green except a thin slice of green cherry.

A simple vegetable salad should be served with a hearty meat course. French dressing is preferred to a rich mayonnaise. A plain orange or grape fruit salad served on romain with a French dressing is ideal with pork roast or rich fish. But a fruit salad swathed in a rich dressing topped with whipped cream is a different matter. This sort of salad should follow a light meat course and is in better taste for the luncheon menu than for dinner.

The vegetable used in the salad should not appear in some other form in another course of the same meal. The same is true of fruit. If apples are an ingredient of the salad an apple pie should not form the dessert.

Asparagus Salad

Put canned asparagus in a large flat strainer. Carefully dip into a big pan of cold water. Care must be taken not to break the heads. Drain and arrange in neat piles on salad plates. A sprig of parsley can be used in place of lettuce for the garnish. Cut narrow strips of pimento and lay across each pile to seem to form a hand to hold the stalks together. Mash the heads with mayonnaise or, if used with beef as a dinner salad, pour over French dressing.

Cheese Salad

One package neufchatel cheese, 2 tablespoons finely chopped nuts, 2 tablespoons minced olives, 2 table spoons minced pimento, cream, hearts of lettuce, paprika, French dressing.

Work cheese to a smooth past with cream. Work nuts, olives and pimento, in adding cream if necessary. Form into small balls and place in a cold place to chill and become firm. Arrange on hearts of lettuce and sprinkle with paprika. Serve with French dressing.

Grapefruit Salad

Two green peppers, 1 cup grapefruit pulp, 1-2 cup minced celery, slice of onion, 1 tablespoon nut meats.

Cut peppers in halves lengthwise. Remove seeds and white fiber. Remove pulp from grapefruit and drain. Use the juice in the French dressing instead of lemon juice. Rub the bowl in which the salad is to be mixed with slice of onion. Mix grapefruit celery and nuts with a French dressing. Fill peppers with mixture and serve with or with or without a bed of lettuce.

Cranberry Jelly

Pick over and wash 1 quart cranberries. Put in sauce pan and add 2 cups of boiling water. Cook 20 minutes. Rub through a sieve, add 2 cups sugar and cook 5 minutes. Turn into mold.

Baked Hubbard Squash

Cut squash in halves, remove seeds and stringy portion, place in a pan, cover and bake until soft in a slow oven. Remove from shell, mash and season with butter, salt and pepper. Place in baking dish and set in oven to reheat.

Fined For Playing Mah Jongg

KUALA LUMPUR, Malay—Mah Jongg has taken the United States and Great Britain by storm. But authorities here frown upon it. Eight Chinese recently arrested for playing it at a private residence, have been fined $5 each. The householder was assessed $150. About $100 was on the table when the police broke in.

Janus, of Rome, B. C. Visits Paris

Janus, the Roman deity of gates and doors, who was always represented with two opposite faces, has been adopted by the Parisian designers as the patron saint of the new evening gowns. "Twofacedness" has become a cardinal principle with these, and Fashion's new book of etiquette recommends that a gentleman requesting the honor of a dance should first examine carefully his prospective partner from all angles, so that in finding her later, he will not be misled by an entirely different architectural plan, as it were. This "robe de soiree" of Nile green Mirrokrepe admirably illustrates this charming vagary of the mode. The deep "U" neck revealed at the back becomes a simple "bateau" in front. The material unadorned in the back, except for its own beauty, is richly embroidered in the front panel with silver threads in a scroll design. More interesting still—to feminine eyes alert for the little touches that "make" a dress—the softly draped girdle of cream chenette is a girdle at the back only, and passing through the front section is transformed into a flowing and graceful panel train. These scarf trains, Henri Creange, the fashion authority, tells us, are very much favored by Paris for relieving the straight, slim line prescribed for evening dresses.

Clean Upholstery

Upholstery may be dry-cleaned with a mixture of starch and whiting sifted together and applied thickly over it. Let stand for a day, then brush off. If there are any grimy spaces wet them with alcohol before putting on the powder.

Dusty Furs

Furs worn in dusty wind or in a smoky atmosphere need to be well combed, brushed against the grain and aired quickly.

Onyx Jewelry

Onyx and diamonds are one of the most popular combinations in jewelry this year.

Fringe Bottom

Three rows of three-inch fringe finish the bottom of straightline frock of black satin.

Black Bags

Bags of black moire or of tucked black silk frequently have fastenings of silver inset with jade.

BRAID-BOUND EDGE MAKES SMART FINISH TO DRESS

For the tailored dress a braid-bound edge is a suitable and smart finish. Buy the silk braid about one inch wide. Crease it, making the under side a trifle wider than the top, so that when it is sewed on the dress all stitching is sure to catch through and hold both edges.

Press the crease, being careful not to stretch the edges. Baste the braid over the raw edge, allowing the edge of the dress to the fold of the braid. If the edge of the dress has a seam allowance, cut it off wherever the braid is used.

Braid may be sewed on by hand with a very fine running stitch along the edge, sewing from the right side, or it may be machine-stitched on the edge.

Press with care, that the edges are not stretched.

"DON'TS" FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Don't do your marketing over the telephone, unless you want seconds and left overs.

Don't buy anything because it is cheap, if you don't need it.

Don't be afraid to buy keepable things in large quantities.

Don't have things charged.

Don't forget that the cheaper cuts of meats afford nourishment, if they are properly cooked.

Don't buy fruits and vegetables out of season.

Don't go on a long shopping trip without first making out a list of things to be purchased, if you would conserve your mental energy.

Don't shop after you have acquired an aching head and jumpy nerves.

These are not capable of good results at anything.

Don't attempt to do your housework with inadequate or worn-out tools.

Don't overcrowd your house with too much—too much furniture, useless bric-a-brac, and cheap pictures.

Don't wear a kimono and boudoir cap to do your morning's work in.

Don't spend practically all day Sunday preparing a Sunday dinner. Sunday should be a day of rest for the housekeeper as much as anyone else

Don't work spasmodically. Do your work systematically.

Don't live beyond your income.

POWELL VALLEY

The ladies of Powell's Valley gave a reception to the Rev. W. D. Farmer pastor of the M. E. Church, South and his good wife Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Thomas. About fifty guests were present, including Dr. J. P. Martin of Emory and Henry College. Among the specially invited guests were all the teachers of the community. After a pleasant social hour, interspersed with music the guests were seated. Mrs Farmer, as guest of honor, was in a beautifully decorated chair and little Dan Thomas entered the room pulling his express wagon well filled with packages and presented them to Mrs Farmer. When the latter opened them she found to her surprise a generous shower of household articles and pleasing gifts. After short talks from preachers and teachers, a salad course was served.

Miss Annie Miller Peyton of Shawnee was the week end guest of Mrs. Minnie Thomas.

HEAD INJURIES

Two principal kinds of head injuries are those that come from contact and shock and those that result from blows. In injuries of the first kind, where the victim is usually thrown on his head, the result may be skull fracture or a fatal brain concussion.

Another cause of severe head injuries is through fainting or loss of consciousness. Sometimes the head strikes with such terrific force that skull fracture results and death follows without regaining consciousness.

In injuries of the first class, little can be done by the layman, except to make the patient comfortable in a reclining position with the head slightly elevated. Insist on quietness and if absence of confusion. If you are sure about the manner and cause of the injury and no marks appear on the head or body, a cold compress or ice cap may tend to relieve the patient until the arrival of a physician, who should be summoned at the first possible moment.

In head injuries of the second class a bruise, cut or severe face or scalp wound may result. Guard carefully against any infection from which meningetis, intracranial infection, brain abscess or phlebetis may result. Such wounds on scalp and face should be disinfected at once with iodine.

If you have a chance to aid any person who is stunned or unconscious from brain or head injury, first find out if there are cuts, bumps or bruises. Be sure the person has not just fainted by the loss of blood from such injury. Do not attempt any internal treatment or pour any water or other water or liquid down the throat.

Illinois, through its Home Economic Association, has returned answers to an interesting questionnaire. In it women were to put down their schedule of work for each day of the week.

The answers showed there is greater sharing of work and play in the farm home than in the large town or city. Hundreds of replies showed the greatest pleasure women received was in doing something for some one else, forgetting self and self pity, avoiding nervous tension and enjoying the great health restorer—sleep.

About one-half of the women had power-driven washing machines. Thirty seven per cent had no washers, except the women. The washing machine is estimated to have eliminated a large number of dreary days from exercise at the back-breaking tubs.

No exact per cent of physical gain could be given as the result of this questionnaire, but indirectly the gain is marked and the increase in life's span measures well up to the national average of between 10 and 11 years.

The bathing facilities also show a decided increase. More country and farm people have bath-rooms than city dwellers ever imagined.

The direct gain in personal health by regular bathing is a great step in the elimination of sickness and contagion. Absolute change in sleeping garments from those worn during the day was another sign of greater gains in health.

One feature which other sections of our country should try to improve decidedly was length of time in eating. The average was very low, only 10 to 15 minutes.

Plan your daily health program so that 20 or 25 minutes at least is spent at table. Your digestive troubles and headaches will show a decided gain by such a program. Your children will be better specimens of happy health.

Food should not be allowed to stand for even a short time in a galvanized iron bucket as some of the zinc coating on the bucket may be dissolved and zinc poisoning result from eating the food.

There is little demand for menageries in Germany, though the collection of wild animals founded by the late Carl Hagenbeck at Stellingen, near Hamburg, is still supplying the world with specimens.
